

Redress Legal Expense Insurance Your Litigation Safety Net

Personal injury claims can be stressful, complicated and expensive to investigate and pursue. Your lawyer is confident that they will bring your case to a successful conclusion, so they will invest considerable time and money. It takes time and money to develop your case and obtain the supporting reports required to get you the compensation you deserve.

Your case is unlikely to go to trial, but you need to be prepared for your lawyer to negotiate hard and to go to trial if necessary.

Contingency Fee Agreements

Your lawyer has discussed the details and the merits of your case with you. They have explained the benefits of a 'No Win, No Fee' arrangement as outlined in their Contingency Fee Agreement (CFA). The purpose of this arrangement is simple – you do not have to pay legal fees until the case settles, but equally as important, your interests are aligned – get the compensation you deserve for your injury.

Under a CFA, if you lose your case, you will not have to pay your lawyer's contingency fee, but under some circumstances, you may be liable to pay your opponent's legal fees, which could be considerable. This liability is if you do not recover any of your costs (e.g., assessments, court costs) from the defense.

Rest Easy Knowing You Are Covered

If your case goes to court and you lose, you may have to pay your opponent's costs, called "Adverse Costs." You also may not recover any expenses your lawyer has incurred in pursuing your action. It is important that you protect yourself against this liability with Legal Expense Insurance!

Redress Protection – No Win, No Fee and now "NO Risk."

Redress Risk's Legal Expense Insurance (LEI) policy protects individuals who make a personal injury claim. Redress' LEI can cover your disbursements and adverse costs if you lose or have to discontinue your claim.

With Redress, you have peace of mind and security to pursue your legal rights without the risk and uncertainties associated with litigation.

What type of claim will Redress cover?

Redress LEI is available for personal injury claims, such as trip and fall accidents, motor vehicle accidents, occupier's liability, long-term disability, dog bites, and more.

How much will the insurance cover cost?

The premium you pay for insurance is very reasonable, and you do not pay it until your case settles successfully. If it does not settle successfully, the premium is waived.

Is my Lawyer paid for promoting the insurance?

To be clear, your lawyer is not paid anything if you purchase Redress insurance, nor are they affiliated with Redress Risk Management. Your lawyer believes that Redress LEI will protect you from the uncertainties you may face in litigation and that it will better enable them to negotiate the settlement you deserve.

Your lawyer can arrange the proper insurance coverage for you right at their office. You have to do nothing other than advise your lawyer that you would like the "No Risk Protection."
